War in the Mountains.

A Pennsylvania paper prints the following remarkable story: "Coincident with the sentence of Henry E. Youtsey at Georgetown, Ky., to a life term in the Kentucky State prison for the murder of Governor William Goebel and the often expressed belief that he is about to make a confession and tell all he knows about the crime, in the hope that he will thereby get another trial, comes the announcement that the State authorities are planning one of the most remarkable man hunts ever known in this country. It is given out that the purpose is to arrest and deliver over to the courts all the outlaws, accused of crimes now at large in the mountains. As a matter of fact the object is to arrest the men who are accused of being concerned in the shooting of Goebel.

week in this month and everything is active in military circles now looking toward the perfection of all arrangements. There are many counties where as many as 10 men have been for months defying arrest or felony charges, the county sheriffs being unable, because of local influence and danger of feud factions, to bring them to justice. The raid is to be made by the personal management of Col. Roger N. Williams, a man largely experienced in quelling feuds, who will act under orders from the Governor and Adjutant General Murray in Frankfort.

"Colonel Williams is to take the first battalion, State militia, under Captains Callhoun and Longmire, with one section of the artillery and two or three field pieces, and proceed to the most convenient points in the mountain districts and from there send out detachments to various points. It is most likely that London, in Laurel county, will be selected for headquarters. This point is within reach of Clay county, where probably there are more outlaws than in any other section, and to Bell and Harlan counties, where Barry Howard and John L. Powers, the fugitives from the Franklin Circuit court, are in hiding.

"Howard's gang will fight. These men are under indictment as being concerned in the shooting of Goebel last winter. Howard has about him a body-guard of determined men and has said he will never be surrender or taken alive.

"Warrants sent to the Sheriff of Bell county have been returned with the entry, 'not found,' written across them, although the officials know well of Howard's hiding place, and one of the deputy sheriffs has for several weeks been a guide for a party of civil engineers working in the county and was with Howard and his posse every day. John Powers still is in Harlan county. He was arrested once, but the county judge released him.

"It is predicted that there will be bloodshed when soldiers are sent after Howard and Powers, even though a large body of soldiers be detailed. It is said that Governor Beckham and his friends are determined, and since the superior force method is the only practical one, it is to be resorted to. It is believed that there will be little difficulty in securing the arrest of any of the men except those accused of the Goebel murder.

"The country in which the soldiers will have to operate is wild and sparsely settled. The roads in the winter are in many places passable only to men afoot or on horseback and the fugitives will not only have great opportunities for hiding, but will have chances for collecting friends and ambushing the militia."

A Blessing.

Dr. Conan Doyle tells this story of a Boer and an English soldier who lay wounded side by side on the field of battle. "They had a personal encounter, in which the soldier received a bullet wound and the burgher a bayonet thrust before they both fell exhausted on the field. The Britisher gave the Boer a drink out of his flask, and the burgher, a note of condolence in exchange. In the evening, when their respective ambulances came to carry them off to the hospital, they exchanged friendly greetings. 'Goodbye, mate,' said the soldier. 'What a blessing it is we met each other!'"

A Fetching Compliment.

She was not from Chicago. "Do not anger me," she said. "How am I to know when you are angry?" he asked. "I always stamp my feet," she answered. He looked down at her dainty shoes. "Impossible," he said. "There isn't room for a stamp on either of them." That fetched her.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Pat's Reform.

An Irishman passing a store in London saw nothing inside but a man at a table. The thing struck him as being very odd, so he went in and inquired what was sold there. "Asses' heads," said the man at the table. "They must be in great demand," said P. A. "I see you have only your own left."

HISTORIC LINE MARKED.

New Stones Placed Along Mason and Dixon's Famous Division.

Most Americans know through their recollections of childhood studies that Mason and Dixon's line once played an important part in our history. Probably they remember also that it is a line somewhere dividing the north and the south, and a few with unusually good memories recollect that south of Mason and Dixon's line slavery prevailed, while north of it that institution became obsolete early last century. Few of our citizens could if asked locate Mason and Dixon's line or tell where it got its name. Accurately described, Mason and Dixon's line begins at the southeastern corner of the present state of Delaware, runs due west to the middle of the peninsula that lies between Delaware and Chesapeake Bays, thence northward to form the tangent of a circle drawn from New Castle, Del., as a center, with a radius of 12 miles. This north and south line extends to a parallel line within 15 miles of the city of Philadelphia, thence due west to the western boundary of Pennsylvania. The main portion of the line is the parallel 39 degrees 43 minutes 26.3 seconds north.

STONE MARKING MASON AND DIXON'S LINE.

Mason and Dixon's line is the outcome of a dispute between the heirs of William Penn and those of Lord Baltimore, the proprietor of Maryland, as to the boundaries of their respective territories. Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon were two eminent English surveyors and mathematicians who were brought here in 1763 to fix the boundaries. The work took several years and was completed by others.

Mason and Dixon marked the line with stone posts, and the survey in 1846 caused new posts to be set up to take the place of the old ones. Recently it has been found necessary to replace these with new markers. They have been erected by the state of Pennsylvania, and each of them has been surrounded by a heavy wire netting to protect it from relic hunters. The phrase "Mason and Dixon's line" first became popular when in 1820 John Hay, then editor of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, wrote an article on the subject.

"DEESTRICT SCHOOL" TO GO

Ohio Township Adopt a Plan of Centralized Instruction. If the plan of the boards of education of Green and Gustavus townships, in Trumbull county, O., prevails all over the United States, "the little red schoolhouse" so dear to memory will soon be a thing of the past. These progressive Buckeye districts have substituted therefor a system of centralized schools which has given the utmost satisfaction since its adoption last year. By this method of school administration the district schools are abolished and a large graded school erected in the center of the township. To obviate the objection of distance stages are provided to convey pupils to the new schools, the expense of transportation being borne by the township. This system is known as the rural centralized school system. In the Ohio districts pupils who live more than three-quarters of a mile from the central school are conveyed thither by stage.

The plan has met with approval in Ohio and is being investigated by several of the other states. The prospects are that it will be adopted elsewhere. This system is known as the rural centralized school system. In the Ohio districts pupils who live more than three-quarters of a mile from the central school are conveyed thither by stage.

Evidence of Good Faith.

"I was really touched by the poetry you sent me," said Miss Cayenne. "Indeed?" returned Willie Washington. "I thought you might consider it pretty good."

"I didn't study its merits very closely. But instead of indulging in generalities you used my first name. Althea, as a rhyme. Now, Althea is not a very usual name and I am inclined to think that your poetry was addressed to me as an especial object, instead of being made to fit any occasion. It was very nice of you."—Washington Star.

Iceberg Designs.

All the architecture of the world is represented in nature's iceberg designs. Sometimes a little berg will have the appearance of an Arab's white tent as it rides on a desert looking sea; another, its sharp outlines softened in the vaporous atmosphere, will appear like a domed mosque in green marble. A cluster of Chinese pagodas comes drifting slowly down the current, followed by a stately Gothic cathedral, early style. Then comes a coliseum, and beyond a huge man-of-war floats down the current, its stem submerged, with foam grandly breaking over it, the stern 75 feet aloft.

Told at the Club.

"It's this way," said T. Willie Rockingham. "Brown-Jones asks me down from Saturday to Monday. Want to go and I go. Haven't seen B.J. for months; not since he got married to money. Poor old chap." T. Willie sighed and took another observation in his glass.

"Find B.J. looking well. Seems a bit nervous, though. You know his florid style. Scatters your wits and keeps you from thinking. Mrs. B.J.—well, I can't help seeing she bites her lips a lot. Specially sign. Thinks I, T. Willie, little old New York is good enough for you. You were in a better place there. Nothing happens though—not yet—and I begin to forget. Nice country place. Dinner, billiards and the downy. Then it's Sunday. Morning gown, afternoon coma. B.J. sends for the horses. Begins to get on a bit as we stand in the window watching the brutes come up the drive. Been talking quite tall all day about 'his place' and 'his plans.' Mrs. B.J. brings her lips all the time. Now he lets on about 'his quadrupeds. Transient bliss. What do I care? I like to see a man happy. B.J. prattling along. Mrs. B.J. bites her lips some more. Out we go to the vehicle. 'Like to let you drive, old man,' says mine host. 'Know you're all with the ribbons, but I always think my horses like my hand best.' Storm breaks. 'My horses' says my lady, screaming out the first word. 'B.J. turns pale. Then he straightens up. 'Yes, your horses,' he says. 'You own them. You own this place and all that goes with it. You own me. Will you assist Mrs. Brown-Jones, Willie?'"

T. Willie Rockingham shuddered. "Starry money?" he gulped out. "Excuse me, I'd rather work."—New York Sun.

A Surgical Operation.

The Army and Navy Journal tells this story about the late Dr. Lewis A. Sayre of New York city: "When a young medical student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, one of the operating physicians was about to cut off an Irishman's leg, but before beginning the operation gave a long talk to the student on amputation. The Irishman lay on the operating table in full possession of his faculties, and as he listened to the discourse he grew whiter and whiter. Finally he jumped from the operating table, crying: 'Get me me breeches, be go! I'll die with me leg on!'"

"Dr. Sayre found him several days later with his knee badly swollen. The young doctor promptly cut open the knee, but saved the leg. One day he had no hint to bind the wound, so he used the tow stuffing sticking out of an old horsehair sofa. When he called again, he found the wound so much improved that he reasoned that tow dipped in Peruvian balsam would not only disinfect a wound, but would keep it moist. This was the foundation of one of the most satisfactory successes he ever had in surgery. It was the means of introducing into the army the use of tarred hemp, or oakum, as a dressing for wounds."

One Race For Money.

"If it is not true that we Americans regard money making as the work for which life was given to us, why, when we have millions, do we go on struggling to make more millions and more?" writes "An American Mother" in "The Ladies' Home Journal." "It is not so with the older races. The London tradesman at middle age shuts his shop, buys an acre in the suburbs and lives on a small income or spends the rest of his life in losing it in poultry or fancy gardening. The German or Frenchman seldom works when past 60. He gives his last years to some study or hobby—music, a microscope, or it may be dominoes. You meet him, and his wife, jolly, shrewd, intelligent, jogging all over Europe. Backed in hand. They tell you they 'have a curiosity to see this fine world before they go out of it.'"

A Suggestion.

Inasmuch as all of the candidates for United States Senator from Kentucky have expressed a desire to have an opportunity given the people to express their choice for said office, we suggest that the aspirants for the Legislature from this county unite in a request to the Democratic County Committee to adopt some method that will give the people such an opportunity.

The Kansas City platform, adopted in 1900, contains this plank on that subject: "We favor an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and we favor direct legislation whenever practicable."

It is good Democratic doctrine, and there can be no objection to adopting this method of expressing the people's choice.

To that end we invite an expression from the candidates for the Legislature, and put the columns of this paper at their disposal.

We think that precinct conventions can be held without any expense, to select delegates to a county convention, and that such county convention would reflect the sentiment of the people.

If the candidates would agree to abide by such instruction, it would eliminate all chance of bitterness on account of the Senatorial fight, and make the election of a Democrat from this county to the Legislature doubly sure.

It is much more important that the next Legislature be Democratic than that it be controlled by any one of the Senatorial candidates.

OBITUARY.
Capt. Pat Punch, well and favorably known throughout the State, died at his home in Mt. Sterling on Sunday evening aged 60 years. Capt. Punch was raised in Paris, and during the civil war was a member of Co. G, 24 Ky. Infantry, a regiment of the famous Orphan Brigade, being engaged in all the battles from Fort Donelson. After the war he removed to Mt. Sterling and filled the office of City Marshal and Judge of Montgomery County. During the Cleveland administration he was U. S. Deputy Marshal, and by his daring deeds was a terror to all lawbreakers in Eastern Kentucky. He was the father of Rev. Father Punch, of St. Patrick's Church, of Covington, John Punch, Deputy Warden, of the Frankfort penitentiary, and Richard Punch, shoe merchant of Mt. Sterling. He will be buried at the Catholic Cemetery in this city, on to-morrow afternoon. After the arrival of the Mt. Sterling train his remains will be met by army comrades. Services will be held at the graves by the Confederate Veteran Association.

J. J. Higgins, son of Timothy and Mary Higgins, of this city, died Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, of pneumonia. Deceased was aged 45 years, and had a large circle of friends. The funeral services took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the Catholic Church, and are conducted by Rev. Father Ryan, of Winchester.

Nathaniel G. Hart, son of Henry C. and Bettie Brent Hart and a resident of New York for many years, died at New Springs Ark., Wednesday, and was brought here for burial at the Paris cemetery, by the side of his mother and father. Mr. Hart was born in Paris 60 years ago, at the house across from which his father built and which is now owned by G. G. White.

Wm. A. Brady, the theatrical manager, will shortly put on a mammoth production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Academy of Music, New York.

Among the prominent actors engaged are Wilton Lockyer, Odell Williams and Mrs. Jennie Yeaman.

If In Doubt, Read This.
Manager Porter, of the Grand received the following telegram relative to Hoyt's "A Milk White Flag," which appears at the Grand to-night. There are few attractions on the road which have as good a reputation as this. It is in reality more of a comic opera than a farce comedy. On account of the many musical numbers the orchestra carry their own complete orchestra. This is what the Manager of the Owensboro Opera House says of the company.

R. S. Porter, Paris, Ky., Feb. 9.

This company deserves a crowded house. Don't wait and say if they come back again they will get it. For the reputation of the town and the pretty new opera house it possesses, the management would like to see at least one good audience before the season closes.

FAUST PLEASES.
Goethe's epic poem, "Faust," was presented on the stage at the Grand last night before a large audience. The play was well staged and the company is composed of splendid talent. Porter J. White's interpretation of the character of Mephisto was excellent. Miss Olga Verne, as the handsome Marguerite, Mr. Chapman, as Faust, and Mr. Kalb, as Valentine, were all applauded for their proficiency in acting. The scenery, costumes and electrical effects were all that could be desired. The company appeared before a large audience this afternoon and the closing performance will be given to-night—Marion (Ind.) Daily Leader.

This company will appear in "Faust" at the Grand on Thursday night. Seats on sale this morning.

There was never such a chance for bargains in millinery of every description as Mrs. Corne Watson offers at her auction sale, commencing to-morrow morning. Everything will be sold for what it brings.

Manager Porter, of the Grand received the following telegram relative to Hoyt's "A Milk White Flag," which appears at the Grand to-night. There are few attractions on the road which have as good a reputation as this. It is in reality more of a comic opera than a farce comedy. On account of the many musical numbers the orchestra carry their own complete orchestra. This is what the Manager of the Owensboro Opera House says of the company.

R. S. Porter, Paris, Ky., Feb. 9.
Milk White Flag gave great performance here to-night. They carry big company. You can guarantee show first-class.

Feller & Ruch, Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 10.
Manager Opera House, Paris, Ky.
Milk White Flag gave great performance last night. You can fully guarantee it.

J. B. & A. D. Blanton, Mgrs. Capital Theatre.
This company deserves a crowded house. Don't wait and say if they come back again they will get it. For the reputation of the town and the pretty new opera house it possesses, the management would like to see at least one good audience before the season closes.

FAUST PLEASES.
Goethe's epic poem, "Faust," was presented on the stage at the Grand last night before a large audience. The play was well staged and the company is composed of splendid talent. Porter J. White's interpretation of the character of Mephisto was excellent. Miss Olga Verne, as the handsome Marguerite, Mr. Chapman, as Faust, and Mr. Kalb, as Valentine, were all applauded for their proficiency in acting. The scenery, costumes and electrical effects were all that could be desired. The company appeared before a large audience this afternoon and the closing performance will be given to-night—Marion (Ind.) Daily Leader.

This company will appear in "Faust" at the Grand on Thursday night. Seats on sale this morning.

There was never such a chance for bargains in millinery of every description as Mrs. Corne Watson offers at her auction sale, commencing to-morrow morning. Everything will be sold for what it brings.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Champion Boy Skaters.
Master John Barry, Jr., is one of the best young skaters in St. Louis. He is only 12 years of age, but can duplicate almost every trick done on the wheel blades by experts. He has been skating only two seasons, but is the superior to every youngster in the city, with possibly one exception, when it comes to fancy and figure skating. The exception is Cy Young, the diminutive youngster who astonishes the patrons of the ice palace with the ease and grace with which he executes many difficult figures on the smooth surface.

Barry can do almost every trick that Young does, and as far as executing figures is concerned both youngsters are about on a par. Like Barry, Young has only been skating for the past two seasons.

From Loving Parents and Children.

One of the best country weeklies in the State is the Flemingsburg Times-Democrat. Brother Duley has been struggling with it for twenty-two years. Like all other country editors he has had his own troubles, but from present indications it seems he has been able to convince the people of Fleming that he is giving them more than their money's worth. The News hopes that Mr. Duley may be spared many years to reap the rewards of his industry.

Hanson Kennedy Appointed.

Yesterday afternoon at Frankfort, Governor Beckham appointed Hanson Kennedy, of Cynthiana, to fill the vacancy in the Circuit Judgeship caused by the recent death of Judge Kimbrough. Mr. Kennedy is one of the most prominent young lawyers of Harrison county, and his appointment with great general satisfaction.

She Wanted Moore.

"Have you Moore's poems?" asked a sweet young thing of George Varden the other day, as she was looking over a pile of day aged books.

"I think so, miss, I'll look in a minute," replied George. "By the way, here's a fine new story just out entitled 'Just one kiss'."

"I want Moore," interrupted the sweet young thing, and George collapsed.

Kennedy For Circuit Judge.

The Hon. Hanson Kennedy, of Cynthiana, is being tipped as the successor of Circuit Judge Kimbrough, of the Eighteenth judicial district, who died suddenly on Thursday. The district is made up of the counties of Pendleton, Harrison, Nicholas and Robertson. Gov. Beckham will make the appointment early next week. The appointment is not until the next regular election.

Bloodhounds Needed.

The News suggests that the county officials purchase and maintain at the county a pair of good bloodhounds to be used in running down criminals. There is hardly a crime committed in this city or county that the guilty party could not be apprehended in a few hours by the aid of bloodhounds. They would easily pay for themselves in a very short time by means of the decrease in crime owing to their presence. If a burglar, or a hog thief, or any criminal knew that in a short time after he committed his crime a bloodhound would be barking at his heels, he would think several times before committing it. The News hopes the County officials will consider this matter and act favorably upon it.

Burglars at Work.

SOME time during Sunday night burglars effected an entrance into W. T. Talbott & Co.'s clothing store on Main Street. They used a half-inch hole and a bored about ninety holes around a panel in the rear door. Gaining admittance through the panel, which was evidently done by a small boy, as the hole was not large enough to admit a man, the window was opened from the inside. The entire store was ransacked, clothing, hats, suspenders, gloves and boxes of shirts being scattered all over the place. It was impossible for the first time to find any of what was stolen, until an inquest could be taken. They also broke open the cash drawer by boring several holes through the bottom, but did not succeed in getting any money as the cash was placed in the safe on closing the night before. The police are working on the case.

SOME time during the same night some one attempted to gain entrance into Wm. Myall's residence on upper Main Street, but were frightened away by Mr. Myall. It would be well for housekeepers and others to be prepared for these midnight visitors, and give them a buckshot reception.

JUDGE LYNCH

Weakens Sure and Swift Ven-geance on Geo. Carter, the Assaulter of Mrs. Board.

QUIET AND ORDERLY, BUT DETERMINED.

A Mob of Fifty Men Take Him From the County Jail and Hang Him in Front of the Court House.

Jailer Kiser Resists Their Demands, But Is Overpowered By Force of Numbers.

VERDICT OF THE CO-RO-NEER'S JURY.

Swift, sure and certain was the vengeance meted out to George Thomas Carter by an enraged people yesterday morning. Ever since the arrest of Carter last week, and his being held over to Circuit Court on a charge of criminal assault on his sister-in-law, there have been rumors to the effect that he was the same party who assaulted Mrs. W. E. Board some two months since. An effort was made to secure a photograph of him at the jail, but he refused to allow it to be taken, and it was only by strategy that one was obtained. Mrs. Board, it is claimed, immediately recognized the photograph and identified it as being that of her assailant. From that time on there was no doubt in the minds of many that he would never live to stand trial, and the subsequent events of Sunday night proved that their surmises were correct.

Early Saturday morning there were rumors to the effect that the affair would be pulled off that night. It seems that an effort was made to that effect, but on account of the absence of a leader the project fell through. All day Sunday it was whispered about that it would occur that night. No one seemed to know anything definite, although all had heard something to that effect. It seemed, however, to be the general opinion that Monday night would be the time set, and consequently very few persons were on the street after 9 o'clock Sunday night.

At about one o'clock Monday morning, a lone pedestrian on his way home down Sixth Street noticed a small procession of men, probably not over twenty-five, walking rapidly down Main Street, in the center of the roadway and in double file. Curiosity prompted him to follow them, and when they arrived at the Court House, a short stop was made, and from their conversation it soon became evident to him what their intentions were. Again resuming their march they arrived at the County Jail.

Without hardly a word being spoken above a whisper, guards were hastily thrown around the jail building, and when everything was arranged, the doorman of the front of the living apartments of the jail was loudly rung. After a wait of about two minutes, the voice of Jailer Kiser was heard asking, "Who is that?" "Elgin," was the response. Mr. Kiser knew at once it was not the voice of Officer Jeff Elgin, and suspiciously he hurried up stairs and gave the keys of the jail to Mrs. Ashbrook.

Again the bell rang, accompanied by kicks on the door, and Mr. Kiser pulling back the blind saw the porch was crowded with men. He knew at once the meaning of this, and endeavored to secure the keys and escape through the back door. The mob evidently surmised what his intentions were, for immediately there was a smashing of glass in the front door, the lock was opened from the inside, and a crowd of men surged through the front door.

Mr. Kiser was immediately seized and a demand made for the keys. He refused to give them up, saying he did not have them. The mob did not believe him, and began to handle him rather roughly. Mr. Kiser drew his revolver but immediately a dozen weapons were thrust into his face. At this stage of the proceedings, Mrs. Ashbrook, fearing for the life of Mr. Kiser, appeared at the head of the steps and threw the keys down. Mr. Kiser was then hastily locked in the private office of the jail, and the work of securing the prisoner began.

It was the work of less than five minutes to reach the cell of the doomed man. He was already awake, and one of the participants said: "Carter, we want you; you have been in here too long already." The negro spoke not a word, but arose to his feet. The noise was thrown around his neck, and with out and her word he was hustled down the steps. He was dressed only in his shirt and drawers, and was without shoes. At the foot of the steps his arms were pinioned behind him, and with a half dozen hold of the rope, and a crowd on each side and behind him, he was started up Main Street.

Just before leaving the jail the holders of the keys threw them on the floor, and Jailer Kiser picked them up and locked the doors, thus preventing a wholesale jail delivery.

When the crowd with the trembling negro arrived at the Court House, a stop was made and the end of the rope was thrown over the iron arch at the edge of the sidewalk on which once rested so proudly the large golden eagle now placed above the balcony. Carter was asked if he had anything to say, but whether from fear or from the fact that the rope was drawn so tight he could not speak, only a gasp issued from his lips.

"All right, boys," was the order, and in an instant Carter was hoisted up by a score of hands, while numbers pulled upon the rope. No sooner was the body clear of the ground than the rope snapped and the wriggling, twisting body fell with a thud. Instantly another rope was produced, and the body was again hoisted up, this time to stay. After watching it for a short time to make sure of their work a card was pinned on to the body by aid of matches, bearing this inscription:

"There is no place on earth for a man like this."

The members of the mob then dispersed, and in half an hour the streets were entirely deserted and the lifeless body of George Carter was swaying to and fro in the cold night air, a horrible spectacle to behold in the morning.

The first person to discover the body in the morning was Mr. Alfred Rice, the janitor of the Court House. At half-past four he arrived to open the Court House and build the fires, and the first intimation he had of the ghastly affair was when he stumbled against the body while feeling his way up the steps in the dim light.

All morning a large crowd congregated around the body, and several enterprising amateur photographers secured snap shots of the swinging body and the crowd.

At about 8:15 o'clock Magistrate J. W. Thomas, Jr., who is acting as Coroner during the absence of Coroner Roberts, arrived and ordered the body cut down. It was taken to the undertaking establishment of James Corbin, on Main Street, where a jury composed of the following persons viewed it: J. T. Quisenberry, W. A. Parker, Sr., W. B. Pinckard, Edw. Bean, Rolla Bridwell and Vol. Muir. Jailer Kiser and Mr. Rice were the only witnesses examined, and they testified substantially as above.

The jury returned the following verdict: "We the jury find the body before us to be that of George Thomas Carter, and that he came to his death on the night of February 10th at the hands of party or parties unknown."

Carter's criminal record was a bad one. He had served two terms in the penitentiary, one for breaking into Hodges & Walden slaughter house and stealing some lard, and the second time for malicious cutting and wounding with intent to kill Wm. Williams in Ruckeville. There were at the time of his death three charges of attempted rape against him.

The crime for which George Carter suffered the penalty of his life was one which causes a shudder to creep over everyone who possesses a wife, mother or sister when he hears of it. The News does not advocate Lynch law. It believes the laws of the country are strong enough to adequately punish any violator of them, and though at times necessary slow, still justice will at last overtake the guilty. But there are extenuating circumstances some times in the methods of Judge Lynch, and when those who have not the patience to wait on the slow progress of the law, see the hazard as position it places the female members of our community in by the devilish acts of an inhuman brute, there is some excuse for them taking the law into their own hands, and dealing out to them what they would eventually get in the end.

In connection with this affair, we publish the following communication received since our last issue, in which the writer endorses the opinion of THE News in regard to Lynch law:

"The News most strongly advises against such a course. While the crime is one which stirs the blood of every man, when he hears it, still mob law in a civilized community, is as much to be deplored."

Editors THE News: The above is good. If every newspaper would speak as strongly against the mob spirit, it would soon lessen. Every second who commits such a deed, regardless of the color of either victim or assaulter, should be given the extreme penalty of the law; but no mobs. The mob spirit is spreading too rapidly in this country. The victims of it are no longer confined to one race nor mobbed for the one crime, nor confined to one section of the country. It is becoming both fashionable and popular. If this disregard for law, for the fullest investigation by judge and jury, be not stopped, the logical sequence must be but one thing—eventually the burning of Court Houses, the lynching of judges and other public officials. The mob may even lay its sacrilegious hands upon editors.

Allow me, please, to thus express to you, my appreciation of the sentiment so forcibly expressed by you. Very Respectfully,

H. W. CONRAD.

THE News is indebted to the Democrat for the loan of the half tone picture of Carter, which accompanies this article.

Our Great CLEARANCE Sale!

Just a few words of explanation, so that the people may understand the full meaning of this great semi-annual trade event.

Twice in each year—

February AND August,

We hold these clearance sales, for the double purpose of closing out the season's stock, as under no circumstances do we carry our goods from one season to another, and sharing with the people the profits of the season's business. We have made our profits already. We have in former sales surprised the community by the magnitude of our bargains. This time there is a complete collapse of Prices Throughout the House....

The ruthless knife of reduction has been plied with equal precision in every department. An early selection counts for much, as first comes fare best.

You will appreciate the goodness of our offer if you will favor us with a call.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses.

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be resorted to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combatted. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, Feb. 14, 1901.
